

Peter Grace

Peter Grace appears in the midst of today's world of Hip-Hop. His goal is to minister the greatness of God. By sharing his testimony into the lives of today's youth who are struggling on every day basis between right and wrong which later determines life or death. Peter Grace was preordained to minister to drug dealers, drug addicts, the homeless, and criminals who are in bondage through sin. On his song, "Through Me" his music is testifying how he was once in bondage and through the Grace of God, was delivered. He lets them know that only through Jesus he continuously overcomes his everyday struggles.

As a spiritual inspirational rapper, he plans to reclaim hip-hop in the name of Jesus. Through gospel hip-hop, he sends a powerful lyrical message. By his peers he is often compared to the like of Nas, and Rakim for his creative lyrics. He speaks life and love into existence by going against the grain of most of today's lyrical rappers which choose to promote violence, sex, and the use of drugs. Peter Grace feels that the power of the tongue could be a curse or a blessing, life or death.

Peter Grace feels we can not continue to allow our young easily influenced children to keep being deceived by the negative lyrics that is being promoted with no regards to the future of our young nation just for one artist's or label's beneficial gross. Through Jesus, he has found a cure for this poisonous cancer, which is slowly deterioration, and corroding the mind, body, and soul of our nation.

After single handily experiencing the deception of drug dealing, and drug abuse, through him, God has built a testimony to minister to the people at risk. Through the will of God, Peter Grace has vowed to the ministry of turning gangsters into Christians and thugs to the Truth. Pre-Ordained to witness to drug addicts and drug dealers, Peter Grace presents to
